PROCLAIMS VOTE FOR WOMEN

Secretary Colby Formally Announces Amendment of the Constitution

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Suffrage for women became an actuality today when Secretary of State Colby signed a proclamation of the nineteenth amendment to the constitution.

The proclamation of the amendment, giving the vote to women, followed receipt of a certificate of ratification of the amendment by the Tennessee Legislature, and brought to a conclusion one of the longest and most bitter legislative fights in the history of the United States.

Secretary of State Colby, arriving at the State Department shortly before 10 o'clock, announced that he had signed the suffrage proclamation at 8 o'clock at his home. The Tennessee certificate had been delivered to him at his home at 3 o'clock this morning and he had immediately turned it over to Solicitor Fred K. Nielsen of the State Department for examination.

Solicitor Nielsen returned the certificate and the proclamation, and at 8 o'clock, in the presence of Solicitor Nielsen and Charles Cook of the Diplomatic Bureau of the State Department, the proclamation was signed.

Secretary Colby stated that he had promised he would sign the proclamation as soon as possible after receipt of the Tennessee certificate, and for that reason he had affixed his signature at his home before going to his office.

It was generally believed that Secretary Colby had acted to save embarrassment by signing the proclamation at his home, as there had

Engineer Killed in Atlantic Wreck

Freight mogul derailed at function of West Quincy branch and main line. Engineer Doran was pinned under the debris and scalded to death by escaping steam.

Misses Hens After a Blaze in Coop

After calling out Somerville firemen twice, first to extinguish a blaze in his hencoop and then one in his house, Samuel De Cambo of No. 10 Medford street, Somerville, called in the police today.

He declares that last night he had sixty chickens in the hencoop. Today there are but five. Firemen say they saw only five or six when they chopped their way into the hencoop to put out the blaze.

The fire in the hencoop was believed due to sparks from a passing locomotive.

An investigation into the cause of the wreck of an outbound freight train on the New Haven railroad at Atlantic this morning, which caused the death by scalding of T. C. Doran, engineer, and injury to two others of the crew, has been started by officials of the railroad.

After a cursory examination of the facts, one official expressed the view that Engineer Doran disobeyed his signal, perhaps by misunderstanding, and derailed the train by running into an open switch.

Superintendent Pearson has called for statements of those who survived the wreck, including Carl F. Burgess, fireman, who received a broken ankle when

Police Seize Whiskey and Brandy Unloaded From Auto in Jackson Street Yard

Choice whiskeys and brandy, valued at approximately $2,000, were found in a yard in the rear of No. 12 Jackson avenue, North End, today by police of the Hanover street station.

The discovery was made after an officer had seen three men drive up in an auto, remove something and then drive off.

He investigated and in the yard found ten cases of a well-known brand of rye whiskey, twelve bottles of a choice Scotch, twelve bottles of a Canadian brand and seventeen bottles of brandy.

MANY BRITISH SOLDIERS KILLED IN MESOPOTAMIA

London, Aug. 26.—The "killed in action" column in the obituary section of the Times has been revived since fighting has broken out on a big scale between British troops and Turkish revolutionaries in Mesopotamia. The details accompanying the death announcements show that severe fighting has been in progress in Mesopotamia since early in July.

ALL NIGHT BATTLE IN IRELAND

Girl Is Fatally Wounded, 26 Buildings Burned, and Shipyards Threatened in Belfast

By DANIEL O'CONNELL,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, Aug. 26.—Volleys from the rifles of soldiers restored order at Belfast today after an outbreak of violent rioting in which a girl was fatally wounded and twenty-six houses were either wholly or partially destroyed by fire.

The official report on the Belfast outbreak to Dublin Castle said that 46 arrests had been made.

A school in Newton was attacked and the mothers of the children were thrown into panic.

It is reported that an attempt was made to burn the great Belfast shipyards. There was heavy fighting around a church, where an attacking force was driven off.

During the disorders there was much looting. The wounded girl subsequently died of her injuries.

MacSweney Rallies After Spell of Unconsciousness

London, Aug. 26.—Terence MacSweney, Lord Mayor of Cork, on a hunger strike for thirteen days, became unconscious last night but later rallied.

His chaplain was shown the message from King George saying that the question of release was receiving careful attention.

"I am afraid it's too late," he said, "hope for recovery is very low."

There was a demonstration outside Brixton prison by a crowd of more than 1,000 persons, many of the men were in military uniform. The throng had been aroused by the report that MacSweney was dying.

MacSweney's wife sat at his bedside for two hours. She broke down the moment she left, saying: "He will

BRITISH COAL FIRM TO BUY MINES HERE

New York, Aug. 26.—J. H. Gardner, managing director of the Colliery Investment Trust, Ltd., the British coal company which has placed contracts for 35,000,000 tons of American coal, said today that his company was planning to buy large mining properties in this country. It is reported that the American coal already bought by the British concern was purchased at approximately $5 a ton.

By International News Service.

Devoy Retraction of Charges Against De Valera May Effect Reconciliation

New York, Aug. 26.—Following a public retraction of charges made by John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic-American, against President de Valera of the Irish republic, Irish Republican leaders here were hopeful today that a complete reconciliation might be effected between the two factions. Editor Devoy withdraws his criticism of the Irish President which gave the impression that funds raised in the Irish bond sale had been misused at the Republican national convention.

The apology is the result of a peace parley between the warring Irish elements August 15, at which an "Irish envoy" was present, believed to have been Laurence Ginnell, chief assistant of de Valera, recently arrived in this country.

One condition was attached to the retraction: that if it were made public, the prime movers in the peace parley would leave no stone unturned to bring about a reconciliation.

President de Valera had made it known that Ireland would be willing to sign a peace treaty with England based on the Flatt amendment which made Cuba a protected republic, adding that on these terms Ireland would willingly fight the enemies of Great Britain.

In his apology, Devoy refers to criticism of this interview, made by him, and construed as an attack on de Valera. He proceeds: "I deeply regret the existence of such a misunderstanding of my words and motives, and am still unable to see any ground for the misunderstanding."

LOWELL MAN IN CHANNEL SWIM

London, Aug. 26.—Henry Sullivan, the American swimmer, dived into the English Channel at Dover at 5:40 o'clock last night in an effort to swim to the French shore. Sullivan resides in Lowell, Mass.

FORMER OFFICIAL ON DUMMY LIST

Additional assets and secrets of value in the Ponzi case were secured today by the receivers when the "wizard's" safety deposit vault at the Tremont Trust Company was opened.

Ponzi himself was present, having been taken from the East Cambridge jail in a taxi by two deputy marshals.

He had previously surrendered his keys to all his safe deposit vaults to J. Lothrop Motley, counsel for the receivers, with the understanding that he be permitted to be present when the vault at the Tremont Trust Company was opened.

He refused to tell what was in this particular box. The opening of which he felt demanded his presence, but his appeal carried forces enough for the receivers to comply with it.

Deputy Marshal Joseph Quinn and Christopher Uhlioni went to the jail in a taxicab shortly after 10 o'clock. Ponzi was waiting for them. He at once got into the taxi and was driven to the Hanover Trust Company, Washington and Water streets, where representatives of the receivers were to meet him.

STILL AFTER "STRAW MEN."

While preparations for the opening of the vault were being completed, investigation into alleged "straw men" was being continued, and it developed that men high in the city's political life have made money through Ponzi, using others as "straw men."

It is charged that one former city official had engaged in this business, using one of his henchman as a "straw man."

The first mail received at the State House today brought the total claims of Ponzi depositors filed at the executive offices to over $5,000,000.

Today $45,752.50 worth of claims were received, making a total to date of $5,014,092.54 owed to some 12,500 note holders. These figures, however, include the 50 per cent which Ponzi promised to pay. The total claims to date represent $2,175,778.26 actually paid in cash by the investors.

CHALLENGE BY COAKLEY.

Daniel H. Coakley, attorney for Charles Ponzi, hurled a new challenge at the Ponzi receivers today.

Coakley declared that he would welcome an opportunity to testify at the receivers' hearing and defied the receivers to put him on the stand and discuss "fees" with him publicly.

Even the fees which he will be allowed by the bankruptcy court as

ASK LUCKY PONZI INVESTORS TO HELP THE UNFORTUNATE

Receivers Hope Appeal Will Swell Assets and Lighten the Losses of Many

Ponzi's counsel, Coakley said, would go back into the general pot for those who placed their money with the fifty per cent. in forty-five days financier."

He called upon the receivers and their counsel to do likewise, but thus far they have not receded from their announced intention of accepting any fees the court orders.

WILL GIVE UP ALL FEES.

"I want to make it clear that my check tendered for $25,000, and Mr. Melsaac's for a like amount have no strings attached," said Mr. Coakley.

"They are in the pot, as will go any fee that the Bankruptcy Court may award us.

"Now let the receivers do the same, and there will be a better chance of the hardly ones getting back more of their money."

ASK ALL TO RETURN.

With the return of the $50,000 in attorneys' fees and $10,000 from Ponzi's former manager, officials connected with the settlement today expressed the hope that others who profited from Ponzi operations would return their gains. Men prominent in the city's commercial and political life are known to have "invested" under the name of a "straw man" and stock were being taken to have them return the money for the benefit of those who were impoverished by losses in the Ponzi scheme. One former city official was said to have operated with Ponzi through a henchman.

The check for $85,000 sent to Ponzi by the "Brooks Steamship Company" of New York for investment and presented at the receivership hearing by Miss Lucy Mell, Ponzi's private secretary, was generally regarded as a joke, following an investigation in New York.

The steamship company itself is now bankrupt, and it was stated that F. Bradley Cox, whose signature was appended to the check as president, resigned from the steamship company six months ago.

The name of Owen W. Moore was attached as treasurer, and a letter expressing confidence in Ponzi which accompanied the check was signed by "H. Lauder."

It was said at the steamship offices that no men of those names had ever been employed there.

One official pointed to Moore and H. Lauder as possible indication that the whole matter was a theatrical publicity scheme, Owen Moore being a moving picture actor and the former husband of Mary Pickford, and Lauder being the name of the Scotch comedian.

Robert De Masellis, who was Ponzi's general manager for two months, resigning on August 1, declared through his counsel, Michael L. Fahey, that he felt sorry to see poor men and women lose their hard earned money and was ready to relinquish his claim on the $10,000 which Ponzi had placed to his trust in the event that Ponzi should be petitioned into bankruptcy.

The offer was made to the attorney-general, and will be accepted.

IGNORANT OF METHODS.

De Masellis, who was employed in a responsible position in the foreign exchange department of the International Trust Company when he was first hired by Ponzi, has issued a complete statement of his relations with the defunct promoter. He declared that he was kept in ignorance of Ponzi's methods and was unaware that his business was being improperly conducted until the investigations disclosed discrepancies.

The $1,000 fund which de Masellis insisted upon before he would consent to work for Ponzi was placed in trust at the International Trust Company and, according to his (de Masellis') counsel, became the former agents when certain agreements made between him and Ponzi were broken.

RECEIVERS TO OPEN OFFICE.

Tomorrow morning it is believed that the new office of the receivers, room 58, Equitable Building, will be ready for occupancy, and henceforth all business pertaining to the bankruptcy phase of the case will be handled from there, aside of course, from the hearings.

Noteholders, however, have been warned not to call at this office as nothing can be gained by them in interviewing the receivers whose sole duty, they point out, is to determine Ponzi's assets. Payments and the settlements of all claims will be made by the trustees who, in the normal course of bankruptcy procedure, will be appointed when it is determined what Ponzi's assets are.

More records from noteholders reaching the attorney-general's office amounted to $57,668, these arriving within the past twenty-four hours. This brings the total liabilities up to $4,978,540.84. Attorney Robert C. Dodge, of counsel for the receivers, has declared that assets revealed at the bankruptcy hearing will not reach anywhere near a total of $3,000,000.

Lawrence Clients Refuse to Answer Summons

Lawrence, Aug. 26.—Investigation into the affairs of Charles Ponzi in this city reveals that there were more than 4,000 local investors who invested a total near to $1,500,000. Percy Lamb, agent for Ponzi in this city, is said to have been paid $100,000 in commissions alone.

Sub-agents are being thoroughly questioned at police headquarters. Many of them are still owed commissions, according to one of the number, who states he saw many prominent Lawrence men place large sums at the disposal of Ponzi.

Several investors in the Ponzi scheme have refused to obey the request to appear at police headquarters to answer questions. The district attorney told City Marshal O'Brien that any person who failed to respond to the summons will be given an opportunity to go before the grand jury when it convenes here September 15.

Cornelius J. Corcoran, president of the Lawrence Trust Company, issued a statement in which he declared "that not one dollar of my money nor the money of the Lawrence Trust Company was ever invested with or loaned to Ponzi or any person of company connected with him."

JENNINGS DECLARES ENEMIES ARE LYING

William J. Jennings, commander of All-Dorchester Post, A. L., and candidate for State commander to succeed Colonel Logan, said today that the published report he had withdrawn from the race was a "deliberate falsehood, and unquestionably promoted by those opposing my candidacy." "If I am elected," he said, "I will be present eight hours every day at State headquarters where I will be available to service men or their families. I am retiring from business and will have the time."

been some evident conflict between suffrage leaders as to who should arrange for the ceremonies.

"I think it a very great pity that on an occasion so momentous to millions of American women, no women should have been with Secretary Colby when he signed this proclamation," said Mrs. Abby Scott Baker. "Representatives of all the suffrage groups should have been present."

"We are confident that the signature of Secretary Colby completed the suffrage struggle," said Miss Alice Paul, following announcement of the signature of the proclamation. "In spite of every obstacle that our opponents could put in our way women have won the fight to an equal voice in the affairs of this government."

he jumped from the cab of the engine after it had left the tracks.

Men in charge of the switching tower nearby will also be questioned. The accident happened 200 yards from the Atlantic station on the Old Colony division of the New Haven.

Track No. 2 was cleared at 3 a. m., but track No. 2 was blocked for hours. All north-bound trains are going by way of track No. 3, with an average delay of ten minutes. All south-bound trains are going over the West Quincy branch.

An inward bound local on the Granite Branch narrowly missed crashing into the wrecked train, the engineer of the passenger train bringing it to a stop within a few feet of the derailed freight.

The accident occurred at the junction of the Granite Branch and main line.

Ray the engine and one car of the New Bedford bound freight left the rails Engineer Doran was pinned in his cab and scalded to death, before he could be extricated by members of the train crew.

Fireman Burgess jumped as the locomotive struck the switch. He was removed to the Quincy Hospital suffering from a sprained ankle and minor injuries.

ROCKLAND HUSBAND "FOR SALE" IS SWAMPED WITH LETTERS

RUSSELL HOLDS OUT FOR CASH

Wife Anxious for Quick Sale; He Gets Offer of Job From Showman

Rockland, Aug. 26.—Bids for Carl Russell, offered for sale by his wife, Lillian, came by leaps and bounds here today. Every mail which the local postoffice sent out contained new offers or questions relating to Russell with which anxious, prospective purchasers wished to know.

There were offers of positions, offers of theatrical agents and one, just one, Russell confided, was not complimentary. It was signed "Vamp" and offered a pittance.

GETS OVER 100 LETTERS.

"Over a hundred letters came in today," said Russell, adding, "I am temporarily looking after my wife's business."

Husband Russell in his shirt sleeves, and at a little table in the cottage parlor and opened the letters. Mrs. Russell came in occasionally to see how the market in husbands was progressing. As she listened while he read passages in some of the notes she sighed.

"I think he is making a great sacrifice for the children," she said.

OFFERED A JOB.

"I suppose I should have said something before about Carl's character and his home," Mrs. Russell continued. "This I will say. He has been satisfactory to me. I can recommend him as a model husband. The children, of course, love him."

There was another letter from a salesmanship company offering a position. This letter, the writer said, was composed aboard a train and scribbled after the sender had just read about Russell.

"Mike" Troy, an old-time show man, made his call in person. He was at the house when an American reporter called. "I have talked to some length with Russell," said Troy. "And I have found him to be a sensible and bright fellow, so much so that I have offered him a position to show him on the road in the theatres in the circuit I am following."

CHILDREN "WORTH FIGHT."

By this time the room was well filled with the little Russells. Five of the seven children, who appeared in the parlor, a bright looking lot, "These children are worth fighting for," said Mrs. Russell as she picked up Jim, aged three.

"I want to keep them together. Their disposition is all right, mixed," added Russell, picking up Frederick who is nine months, and the baby of the household.

The Russell progeny resemble a flight of human stairs as they line up. There is Lillian, aged thirteen, Dorothy, aged ten, Gordon, eight, George, seven, Marion, five, James, three and Frederick, nine months.

Russell, who claims a lineage direct from John Alden and relationship with the late Hetty Green, said that Frederick is named after one of the distinguished Green household, Frederick Howland Green.

RUSSELL PASSES SALE.

"Some of the correspondents have asked how much I would take for Carl," Mrs. Russell continued, "but there have been no specific amounts stated. There are plenty of people who evidently want my husband, for they are sailing all sorts of questions. I am still hopeful that something more definite will develop, and expect it very shortly, especially if the letters keep coming in at the rate they have today."

SALEM STRIKERS LOSE THEIR FIGHT

Salem, Aug. 26.—The Greater Salem shoe strike, which closed nine factories has ended, a majority of the 5,000 operatives having voted to return to work upon the terms of the manufacturers. This means that the shoe workers lost their fight for a continuance of the 20 per cent. bonus for which they struck.

The manufacturers claimed that in view of the condition of the market it was impossible to continue the bonus. The old wage rate less the 20 per cent. bonus will prevail when the factories re-open.

It is expected the re-opening will occur in a few days. The new agreement is to last a year. All but the cutters voted in favor of returning.

MURDER VICTIM IDENTIFIED

New York Motorman Says Body Is That of Wife, Who Left Home With $600

New York, Aug. 26.—The authorities of Hackensack, N. J., announced today that positive identification had been made of the body of the richly clad young woman found yesterday in a clump of bushes on the Palisades overlooking Grants tomb.

The victim was Mrs. Blanch Schuls, wife of a New York street car motorman, and the identification was made by her husband, Frank.

It was said that Mrs. Schuls had with her when she disappeared Saturday five diamond rings and $600 in money.

Detectives came to New York today to search for a man against whom suspicion was directed by the story of the dead woman's husband.

EVIDENCE OF ROBBERY.

When the body was found and during the early investigation the police declared robbery was not the motive for the crime, as all the clothing, they said, indicated that the woman had made a vain struggle to fight off her assailant.

The story of the husband today, however, was in strong contrast to this. He said she carried the $600 inside her corset, and the police found that the corset had been ripped and almost its entire length. This would indicate, it was said, that the murder was committed by someone who knew the woman had the money.

Schuls believes his wife went to Palisades Park alone, as she had often asked him to take her there.

The body was found about three blocks from one of the park entrances. Schuls said his wife was fond of theatres and on two occasions had left him to join a chorus. She at one time worked in a department store, he said.

The scene of the murder lies in a fairly well populated section of Grantwood.

KILLED CLOSE TO HOUSES.

Scarcely 100 feet away in a row of occupied dwellings, and while the spot where the body was found is screened by a thick growth of brush, entrance and escape could be made only by passing several houses along well-lighted streets. Palisade avenue, a popular motor highway, is but fifty feet from the spot.

Police Lieutenant Morrell said the scene of the murder bore marks of a hard struggle. The ground is strewn with rocks, but the police did not find a stone which seemed to have been used as a weapon. Two of the woman's front teeth were knocked out.

Leaves and twigs from the bushes had been stripped off and the ground was torn and trampled. A man's watch chain, evidently torn from the lapel of his coat, was found.

In view of the terrific struggle, during which the woman must have had chances to scream, it is considered strange that neighboring families slept peacefully while a tragedy was being enacted almost at their doorstep.

The New England States, New York and New Jersey, will be in charge of George F. Lamb, with headquarters in New York.

Lock of Hair Confirms War Hero's Death

Lawrence, Aug. 26.—The deciding factor in establishing the death of Octave Cinchon of No. 4 Doyle street, this city, a French soldier, was a lock of child's hair. He died in a hospital at Torenta, Italy, July 3, 1918, from wounds received in battle.

When his wife received the news of his death she believed that there had been some mistake and cherished the hope that her soldier-husband still lived. Conflicting information gave her still more hope.

His personal effects have just reached her and a lock of hair contained in the baggage has convinced her he is dead. He was a mill operative here before he entered the service and was one of the first from this city to give up his life in the war.

NEW R. R. FARES CAUSE MIXUP

Unparalelled Confusion on All Lines as Revised Rates Go Into Effect

The introduction today of new rates of fare on all the railroads of the United States was accompanied in this part of the world by confusion unparalelled in the experience of the oldest trainmen.

Commuters on all lines leading into the South Station in hundreds of cases forgot to supply themselves with new twelve-ride tickets, were held up for cash by conductors, whose pockets bulged like pot-bellied cash registers, and on arrival at the terminal made a bee line for the "redemption" window to turn in the old and get new pieces of cardboard.

For these reasons unexplained there appeared to be much less trouble on the Boston & Maine. But everywhere, regardless of the advance noticed by the hundred, it came with a shock to travelers that the price of railroad travel had gone up 20 per cent, or one-fifth, if one came down yesterday from Lawrence, for example, the single-trip ticket cost only 86 cents. Today's price for the same journey was $1.04. Proportionate increases went into effect everywhere.

According to conductors, the bulk of their troubles today came from the twelve-ride ticket folk. The single-tripper had been taken care of by the gentlemen of the ticket offices. Some conductors were delayed to such an extent by making change that they were unable to recover their trains. The result was that many passengers will find it cheaper to come to Boston today than it ever was before or is likely to be again.

The new rates for sixty-ride monthly tickets and twelve-ride trip tickets on the Boston & Albany are shown in the following table. The sixty-ride ticket is limited and may be used only by the person whose signature and description it bears. The figures are:

Several thousand "commuters" redeemed their unused tickets at the South Station today to buy new books at the increased price. Many of them rounds bit their tongues as they heard the new prices they were compelled to pay.

There was a grand rush for the booth especially prepared, with three windows, for the redemption of unexpired tickets on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. At times there were twenty-five to fifty persons in each line. It took some as long as twenty minutes to reach a window.

In addition, there were two windows inside the waiting room devoted only to redeeming unexpired tickets on the Boston & Albany and New Haven roads, and a force of fifteen clerks was busy giving cash for unused tickets in the general passenger rooms, No 534 in the South Station. This room is open from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m., daylight time.

Then the "commuters" had to turn to another window and stand in line another twenty minutes or so before they could buy their new books at the increased prices.

The ticket lines at selling windows were unusually long, because the clerks have not memorized many of the new rates. In time they will remember the fares to important stations and they will be able to cope for the buyers as in normal times.

Society Folk Dine on De Luxe Air Express

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—Although Mrs. Vincent Astor engaged passage on the "Aeromarine Express" to Southampton, she disappointed her friends at the last moment by sending word that she was indisposed, which also upset the moving picture plans at Southampton.

The society folk who did make the trip included Mrs. Henry P. Russell, who telegraphed back, "delightful trip"; Dr. Thomas A. Lebreton, the Argentine ambassador, and Captain J. Molineaux Dillon, formerly of the Royal Air Force, chief pilot. The aero express landed at the National Golf Club grounds at Southampton. Mrs. Russell read a book during the greater part of the trip. The steward served lunch, consisting of such piebolan dishes as ham and eggs, sandwiches, grapes and ice cream as the craft neared Long Island. A purser and one seaman looked after the dozen pieces of baggage. Other trips will be made. Mrs. Astor may yet make the flight.

NEW 'SALLIES' HEAD HERE

Parents of Famous McIntyre Sisters Succeed Colonel and Mrs. Gifford

Command of the New England forces of the Salvation Army formally changed hands today for the first time in twelve years, when Colonel and Mrs. William A. McIntyre of New York came to Boston to take over the New England jurisdiction as successors to Lieutenant Commissioner and Mrs. Adam Gifford. Colonel and Mrs. McIntyre arrived almost simultaneously with the departure of Commissioner and Mrs. Gifford for San Francisco, the territorial headquarters.

The new commander of the New England forces will be publicly welcomed tonight in Shawmut Congregational Church. Today he met for his first officers' council all the officers of New England, who came to Boston to bid good-by to Commissioner and Mrs. Gifford and greet their new chief.

Accompanying Colonel McIntyre was his daughter Irene, who serves as his private secretary. She and her sister, now Mrs. Gladys McIntyre Harmon, were decorated a little more than a year ago on Boston Common by General Edwards for bravery on the firing lines in France. The Misses McIntyre were among the first Salvation Army lassies to serve doughnuts to American doughboys.

Other officers who succeeded to various assignments on the New England staff and field personnel included Major and Mrs. William Crawford, Philadelphia, New England general secretaries; Brigadier and Mrs. John Sprake, Cincinnati, Northern New England divisional officers, Portland; Major and Mrs. David Main, Southern New England divisional officers, Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. William Quirk, New England young people's secretaries; Staff Captain and Mrs. John Gourley, and Staff Captain and Mrs. John Waldron.

ITALY FAVORS RUSSIANS

Urges Recognition of Soviet, it Is Said; New Battle Opens in Poland

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 26.—Italy has sent a note to the Italian Ambassador at Washington for transmission to Secretary of State Colby, advocating the opening of relations with Soviet Russia, according to an Agence Radio dispatch from Lugano today.

The opening of relations with Russia would be tantamount to recognition of the Soviet government at Moscow. In his recent note to Italy, President Wilson expressly refused to recognise the Soviet.

Russians Begin Counter-Attack on North Front

Paris, Aug. 24.—The Russian army in the Bielostok sector of the northern Polish battle front has ceased its retreat and begun to counter attack, according to official advices reaching the Polish legation from Warsaw at noon. The result of the new battle has not yet been determined, officials of the Polish legation said. The Russians in the sector of Grodno are resisting the Polish advance strongly.

Poland has decided to take the initiative in the Russo-Polish negotiations and propose new peace terms to the Soviet that conform with the present military situation on the Polish battle front said a Warsaw dispatch to the Matin today.

According to an "unofficial report" from Warsaw detachments of the second Polish brigade entered Grodno on Tuesday but the Polish legation has no official advices confirming the occupation. It was admitted at the Polish legation that General Budenny's Red cavalry army had reached the outskirts of Lemberg, in Galicia, before being driven back by a Polish volunteer army.

The Russian Soviet government has abandoned its demand for the arming of Polish workmen, according to the official interpretation placed by the Foreign Office upon a garbled radiogram from Moscow today.

JUMP IN PRICES OF COAL HERE

Boston Dealers Advance Costs Despite Sharp Break in South Due to Probe

While coal speculators in Baltimore and Norfolk markets were running to cover today to evade prosecution under the Lever act, resulting in a sharp break in the prices of tidewater coal, Boston dealers went right ahead and announced a raise in price to meet the advanced freight rates.

Furnace coal was raised from $14.25 to $16 a ton by the Metropolitan Coal Company, egg and chestnut went from $14.50 to $16 and nut coal was raised from $12.75 to $14.25. Soft coal remains at $12.25 for the present.

The higher freight rates constituted the sole reason given for the increases by officials of the fuel corporation. All of their coal on hand, it was said, had been sold at the old prices and no new orders could be delivers only after paying bigger freight charges, it was necessary to increase the consumer's price.

That coal prices are up for a tumble, similar to those of sugar, was the forcast made by Department of Justice officials at Washington today. Prices, it was said, have already dropped at Baltimore coincident with the arrival of federal agents in that city to gather evidence against an alleged combination of dealers.

New England may be affected by the investigation which has been ordered of profiteering at Hampton Roads, the bunkering station from which this section receives its supply. The Federal Trade Commission has reported that West Virginia coal costs $5.40 a ton delivered at Hampton Roads.

With production at the mines on the increase and improved transportation rapidly filling the bins depleted by the miners' strike, railroad strikes and freight congestion. These conditions, Federal officials said, indicated a break in the coal market. The flagrant cases of coal profiteering, it is said, are confined largely to the Atlantic coast.

Department of Justice chiefs have announced their intention of making for the maximum penalty in convictions of coal profiteering.

Washington, Aug. 26.—There has been no dearth of "devil dog" applicants for the Marine Corps, records of the Marine Corps for the Summer now being completed show. At the present rate of enlistments the Marine Corps is expected to reach its maximum peace time strength in a few months.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS

These suits were made by a concern who operate retail stores in the Middle West. You know what's happened to Clothing dealers all over the country, but it didn't happen to us, simply coz the Manager don't know nuthin 'bout modern proud-store methods and has and will continue to monkey with this business along common horse sense and sawmill ways. It's lucky sometimes not to know too much and be a Pariah among merchants coz if I hadn't been a "chump" as one feller called me, we'd been loaded to the muzzle with Clothing at prices never before heard of and so big you'd think they were automobile numbers but fortunately having to use a rake to get the hayseed outten my hair we were not cot with galluses unbuttoned and were all ready to take over the thirty seven cases Men's suits and let our friends have em for

FIFTEEN DOLLARS

I'm not goin to tell yer we bot em at fifty, thirty-five or twenty-five cents on the dollar coz any man with common sense (an our customers have it) can tell the minute he sees em how ridiculous the price of Fifteen Dollars is. We're goin to ask yer to takem without alterations but if you make a fuss 'bout it, we'll alter em, but there's no sense in it an you've no right to kick 'bout it coz there's suits for long men, suits for short men, suits for thin men, suits for sawed-off men, suits for fat men, suits for all kinds of men, gentlemen an others; suits cut regular, suits cut stout, suits cut slim, suits cut long slim, suits cut long stout, suits cut short stout, suits cut stub an every way ever thought of by highbrow designers, so why in the devil should yer want alterations.

Friday mornin at nine o'clock you can begin to lug em off and yer don't need to hurry, there's no sweat 'bout it coz there's plenty ofem an I don't want yer all to pile in here in a bunch an mix everthin all up; give everyone a show and save some for the feller out of town who can't get in 'till Saturday, or, Monday or Tuesday, no use to get excited an try to Grabemallinaminute coz it aint fair an I won't stan for it.

If yer feel like it yer might see all our Washington Street windows full ofem, gaspiperacks full ofem, Philadelphia table full ofem an all the other racks an tables which we haven't named full ofem.

There I've tole yer 'boutem an now do just as yer dampleeze an then we'll all be satisfied.

Yours truly, where U Bot the hat

Hot Days Derange Best of Stomachs

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for quick relief from stomach troubles. Let children try it!

IT is fascinating to growing girls to nibble at candy and accept invitations for sodas and teas, but in hot weather it is apt to destroy appetite for more wholesome food and leave the stomach deranged.

It is of utmost importance to see that the girl has regular daily elimination. At the first sign of headaches, biliousness, bad breath, you will know she has constipation. Do not wait for nature to adjust herself but give a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and the symptoms will soon disappear. Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with Pepsin, and a bottle can be bought at any drug store. It is mild and gentle in action and does not gripe. The taste, too, is very agreeable.

Thousands of mothers will not give children anything else, and many retain Syrup Pepsin when nothing else will stay on the stomach. That was the experience of Mrs. Fillan of 669 N. Main St., Manchester, N. H., who had to discard all other laxatives because she could not keep them down. But she finds Syrup Pepsin suited to her system. This must be no generality as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling remedy for constipation in the world, and it has brought relief to millions besides Mrs. Fillan. You should try it.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought during stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

LEGION FIGHTS OVER BONUS

Four-Fold Plan to Be Indorsed, Say Advocates; Keville Favorite for Commander

By CHARLES O. POWER.

Springfield, Aug. 26—Hundreds of delegates are assembling here for the second annual State convention of the Massachusetts Department, American Legion, which opens tomorrow and continues through Saturday. Governor Coolidge has been invited to make an address and will make a special effort to do so.

Here are the two most important questions to be settled by the convention:

Shall the four-fold bonus plan submitted to Congress by the national organization and the State commanders, be indorsed or rejected?

Who will be elected to succeed Col. Edward L. Logan of South Boston as State commander?

Advocates of the bonus say a canvass of the delegates indicates that it is to be a pro-bonus convention by a large majority.

OPPOSITION EXPECTED.

It is expected by the bonus leaders that there will be opposition, organized and well-directed, against any resolution which would place the convention on record as positively favoring the bonus bill, which has passed the Lower House of Congress, and demand its speedy passage by the next session of the United States Senate.

This is the "adjusted compensation" bill evolved by the House Ways and Means Committee after many conferences with the national and State officers of the Legion and several protracted public hearings.

It provides for money compensation based on length of service, education, farm land opportunities, and loans for farm stock and operating necessities. It is an attempt to best meet the needs of the service men in the various sections of the country.

POWERFUL INFLUENCES AT WORK.

It is known that powerful influences have been at work in this State for several weeks to prevent indorsement of the bonus bill by the convention.

The first move of the bonus antagonists, it is believed, will be an attempt to reaffirm the resolutions of the last State convention, which left the entire matter of compensation, without suggestion, to the generosity of Congress.

There are some here among the advance guard who profess to believe that the anti-bonus contingent are raising the great odds against them, and that their protests are anticipated with content; themselves with what they consider a dignified protest.

There is a strong sentiment for Colonel William J. Keville of Belmont for State commander. He is not keen for the place. He has served on the executive committee and knows all about the demands upon a man's time exacted by the duties of the office.

Colonel Logan's report undoubtedly will be illuminating on that phase of the situation.

SENTIMENT FOR KEVILLE.

If Keville can be induced to say the word he will have practically the entire Middlesex delegation and generous support from Suffolk, Essex, Norfolk, Bristol and Worcester Counties. He is the favorite of a considerable number of Western delegates.

Keville, it is said, would rather see Colonel Thomas J. Foley of Worcester take the job, and Foley is said to feel the same way about Keville.

Others prominently mentioned for the place are Colonel A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester, senior vice-commander; Major James T. Duane of Clinton, chairman of the Legion committee on welfare; John A. Colbert, commander of Arlington Post, and known as the enlisted men's candidate; William F. Jennings, commander of All-Dorchester Post; Frank P. Haton of Hammond Post, Dorchester, and Joseph Redden of Springfield.

Andrew is in line for promotion. Duane showed unusual efficiency in handling the State's gratuity of $100 to service men. Colbert is vigorous and thinks he could put more "pep" in the working force at the State headquarters. Jennings would make it hot for the slackers and draft dodgers. Paton and Redden are popular commanders and for the bonus.

SPILLANE SURE OF PLACE.

The re-election of Leo Spillane as state adjutant seems to be conceded. There is, of course, some criticism of his office, and there may be an anti-bonus candidate against him. His annual report, his many friends declare, will show the great volume of his work and be his complete vindication.

R. G. Cholmely-Jones, head of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, and U. G. Lamkin, head of the rehabilitation department of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, have accepted invitations to speak.

It will be essentially a business convention. Local committees have co-operated to facilitate the program in every way. Much that they had hoped to do in the way of entertainment of the delegates must be cut out because the convention will last but two days, instead of three, as last year and as first planned. One of the big features that must be dispensed with is a clambake down the river. Visiting delegations are quartered as follows: Worcester County, Hotel Bridgeway; Suffolk County, Hotel Kimball; Middlesex County, Hotel Kimball; Hampden, Franklin, Hampshire and Berkshire Counties, Hotel Worthy.

BOY KILLED WHEN HE RUNS BEFORE TROLLEY

Fernald, Me., Aug. 26.—Wallace Davis, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Davis of No. 9 Madison street, was instantly killed as he darted from behind a team directly into the path of an electric car.

ABINGTON MAN MISSING 10 DAYS; FEAR FOUL PLAY

Relatives of John J. Kelly, missing from his home in Abington for ten days, appealed to the American today to assist in locating him. The fact that he was carrying a considerable amount of money when he left home lead them to suspect foul play. He departed from his farm a week ago Wednesday for Boston, intending to purchase an automobile.

Since then all trace of him has been lost. Relatives in New York and other points report that he has not visited them. Kelly is a shoemaker by trade and has a wife and two children, Mary, four years old, and Joseph, two years old.

BOSTON MAN WILLED $5,000 FOR SERVICES

New York, Aug. 26.—Albert M. Cameron, a nurse, of No. 34 Dalton street, Boston, gets a bequest of $5,000 in appreciation of faithful services in the will of William Campbell Cricks, who died in Boston, August 12.

The widow, Mrs. Clara M. Cricks, of No. 2465 Broadway, receives the residue, with instructions to pay one-third of the income to the testator's father, Charles Cricks of Pittsburgh, until his death.

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps)

You can keep your arms, neck or face free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and rinsing if you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone. —Advertisement.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonsful of mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you mulsified.—Advertisement.

Too Much Appetite may be as dangerous as too little

When the skin is sallow or yellow, the eyes dull, the head aches or sleep broken and unrefreshing, the back aches, or there is a pain under the right shoulder blade—it is an indication that the body is being poisoned by poorly digested and imperfectly eliminated food-waste. FRANK A. VANDERLIP WARNS OF DECLINE IN U. S. TRADE ABROAD

Says It Would Do This Nation No Good to Enter the League of Nations

Following is the first instalment of an important interview with Frank A. Vanderlip, financier and authority on world political economy. Tomorrow the American will publish the second chapter, in which Mr. Vanderlip discusses Japan and the United States. On Saturday he will tell "why Europe's war construction is slow."

Copyrighted, 1920, by International News Service.

New York, Aug. 26.—Inherently, the American business outlook is sound, but the next six years cannot be so bounteously prosperous as the past six—which were inflated, owing to unusual war conditions—and unless the American people curtail luxurious extravagance there will be difficulties ahead.

"Not only in our business life, but in our private affairs, I believe we all should strive to be more frugal."

Asked whether he thought the United States could remain out of the League of Nations just as long as the League is kept ineffective by the Allies without injuring the American world-position seriously, Mr. Vanderlip said: "We have injured our foreign status already about as much as is conceivable. Staying out will not hurt us."

"In the American business outlook today inherently sound?" he was asked.

"Business in this country," Mr. Vanderlip explained, "is largely dependent upon crops. There will be bounteous crops this year, especially of those crops harvested in the latter part of the season.

"Bumper crops tend to protect the United states from industrial depression in the home market?" he was asked.

"How about foreign trade?" he was asked.

FOREIGN TRADE DECLINES.

"Our foreign trade gradually is declining, as figured against monthly show. With the exception of a few American industries with their own distributing organizations abroad—such as the Singer Sewing Machine Company, the Remington Typewriter Company, the Standard Oil Company and the McCormick Harvesting machinery people—we are amateurs as compared with England at foreign trade.

"There have been too many American business men who have failed in their own line who think they can become successful exporters.

"With no study of the market they are trying to serve abroad without catering to the individual or peculiar wants of the foreign buyer and without keeping themselves adequately informed as to world trade conditions, they are interested chiefly in the 'first shipment'—which often may prove the last under such circumstances. Consequently such exporters are doing our foreign trade incalculable harm, for buyers will not put up with such dealings longer than necessary. They will buy elsewhere.

"Another thing: We cannot continue selling abroad in the present volume unless we begin to take goods in exchange."

"Would you knock holes in our tariff wall?" Mr. Vanderlip was asked.

"That will not be necessary," he answered, "persons interested in developing our foreign trade might do well to consider the policy of British manufacturers who take great pains in retailing foreign customers in specializing in their respective wants and in fostering permanent business relations through 'repeat' orders.

"We have excelled in those industries where Massachusetts production can be utilized, thus satisfying a large home consumption and disposing of the surplus abroad."

CREDITS EXHAUSTED.

However, Mr. Vanderlip held that the chief reasons today why American foreign trade was falling off were that Europe's initial hunger for American products due to their war reconstruction work, has been partly satisfied, and that many European nations have exhausted their credits here.

"The sooner this nation gets back to the hard facts of economic life and to a sounder business morality the better it will be.

"Artificial conditions, the outgrowth of the war, which have been making our national life so extravagant, must be curtailed.

"I do not mean by this that the workingman is not entitled to fair pay for an honest day's work. Nor do I mean wage increases have not been essential. I think one may safely figure wages and other expenditures on a basis of two and a half times those of 1914. Where a dollar was spent then it now necessary to find in my own affairs, to spend $2.50.

"But the point is that we should start—not necessarily or by any means with wages—to reduce expenditures."

Discussing the presidential campaign, Mr. Vanderlip confessed he was surprised and disappointed that neither the Democratic nor Republican party had risen to the opportunity before it.

"There was a lamentable lack of outstanding statesmanship or national leadership shown at the Chicago and San Francisco conventions," said Mr. Vanderlip. "And I say this as a Republican."

"As to the presidency itself I have one thought upon that. Since Roosevelt was President there has grown up an exaggerated idea of the power and influence our Chief Executive should exercise. I believe our President should not possess powers of a dictator or monarch.

"The position is an executive one designed to carry out the expressed wishes of the majority of our people—and not to further the ideas, aims or ambitions of one clique or of one man."

"Let us life the Russian curtain and see for ourselves what is going on in Russia.

"It is needless to say that I'm not a Bolshevik. In fact the great majority of Americans are not Bolshevik. There is a wide ignorance I believe as to what Bolshevism, or communistic Socialism means.

"We cannot understand Russia if we look at her through a curtain."

Mr. Vanderlip suggested that an American mission, either official or unofficial, but unmistakably impartial, might do this country a good service by visiting Russia—just as British, labor and other European delegations have done theirs—and reporting to our people the actual conditions, problems and needs of Russia, minus propaganda trimmings.

"Of course, it might be that the Russian Soviet government would not permit such an impartial survey of their country," said Mr. Vanderlip, "but we might try. At present our information about Russian conditions is second or third hand.

"There is no sentiment of consequence in this country toward assisting anything of a communistic-socialistic trend which clashes with American ideals. But we ought to find out for our own benefit just what the present situation in Russia is."

"I do not think we should make any move as regards Russia until we first have accurate information upon which to go. But to work in the dark as at present seems absurd."

"What do you think of Secretary of State Colby's Russian note, which sought to drive a wedge between the Russian people and their Moscow government" he was asked.

"I think it will prove ineffective," Mr. Vanderlip declared.

Miners Granted Award of $1.50 a Day Increase

By International News Service.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Day men in Illinois coal mines will be granted an increase in wages of $1.50 per day, making a scale of $7.50 for eight hours work, and it is believed today that the coal wage controversy in Illinois has been ended.

E. C. Searles, representing the operators, said he believed the award would be satisfactory to the men, although the miners originally asked an increase of $2 per day.

Latest Cotton Estimate

TAKE PHOSPHATE WITH MEALS IN SUMMER-TIME

Your Nerves Demand It. Your Blood Needs It, Say Physicians

There's not enough phosphorus in modern foods to benefit nearly one-half of the men and women of America, scientists declare.

To overcome this lack of an element of your body that is necessary to your health, your happiness and even your success in life, weak, anaemic, nervous, run-down people are advised to take Bitro-Phosphate as dispensed in leading drug stores in the original package.

Speaking of people who are easily fatigued, who lack ambition, nerve and are oftimes thin, weak and sadly lacking in firm, healthy flesh, Joseph O. Harrigan, formerly Visiting Specialist, North Easton Dispensary, N. Y., says:

"Patients who were apparently physical wrecks, who foolishly thought they needed only a blood tonic to enrich the blood, have come for treatment trembling and shaking, their nerve force almost exhausted, and in many cases the administering of Bitro-Phosphate has produced seemingly magical results."

People who feel the heat of Summer, tire easily and often become irritable and depressed, will find Bitro-Phosphate an inexpensive and helpful friend.

Druggists report a wonderful increase in the demand from men and women who are anxious to renew ambition and who are making an honest effort to become vigorous and keen-minded, with a power of endurance that denotes almost perfect health.

They ask for Bitro-Phosphate because they know they need an inexpensive organic phosphate.

LODGE FIRM ON IRISH PROBLEM

Refers to Resolve Passed by Senate Last Year as Expressing His Views

Henry Cabot Lodge in a letter to John Jackson Walsh, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, states his position regarding Ireland is defined by the Irish resolution which he supported and which was passed by the Senate last year. The Nahant statesman warns, in his reply to the communication from Walsh, against foreign entanglements.

The Senator in his letter refers to his Irish views as follows:

"On June 4, 1919, Senator Borah brought before the Senate the following resolution which he had reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations, of which I am chairman:

"'Resolved, That the Senate of the United States earnestly requests the American peace commission at Versailles to endeavor to secure for Edward De Valera, Arthur Griffiths and Count George Noble Plunkett a hearing before said peace conference in order that they may present the cause of Ireland.'

OPINION UNCHANGED.

"My colleague, Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, offered the following amendment to the resolution as reported from the committee:

"'Resolved further, that the Senate of the United States expresses its sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of its own choice.'

"In the debate which followed I gave my reasons for my support of both the resolution of the committee and the amendment offered by my colleague. The resolution, with Senator Walsh's amendment, passed by a vote of 60 to 1. That resolution expressed my attitude in regard to Ireland and I have nothing to add to it or to what I then said in regard to it.

AMERICA FIRST.

"You suggest that I should urge the adoption of a resolution similar to the one offered by Mr. Webster in 1823 in regard to Greece, and in behalf of which he spoke in January, 1824.

"It will be seen that this resolution involved recognition of the revolutionary government of Greece, then engaged in war with Turkey. The conditions surrounding Mr. Webster's resolution were very different from those of today."

In regard to his foreign relations' views Lodge states he has not changed opinions which he expressed a year ago, pointing to a speech he made in the Senate, August 12, 1919, advising against foreign entanglements and he closes his letter as follows:

"I believe that the highest duty of all Americans, whether native-born or naturalized, when they deal with public questions and elections to office is to think as Americans, to vote as Americans, and in all that concerns their country ever to remember that they must be Americans first."

WALSH CRITICIZES COOLIDGE AND LONG

Governor Coolidge and Richard H. Long, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, were attacked by Senator John J. Walsh, who also seeks the nomination, in an address at Pemberton square. He classed the nomination of Governor Coolidge for the Vice-Presidency of the country on a law and order platform as a "foul insult to the public." He said Long had not produced any credentials showing capacity for public service.

TAGUE ANSWERS LOMASNEY

Congressman Points to 'Czar's' Advice Against Voting for Conscription

Congressman Peter F. Tague, at rallies in Charlestown, answered the charge made by the "Ward Five Czar" that "Tague was a traitor" by demanding that Mr. Lomasney tell the voters in what way.

"I am glad to have Mr. Lomasney call me a traitor," he said, "for I know he means that I am a traitor to Lomasneyism. Of that I am proud. But nobody can ever accuse me of being a traitor to my country.

"When Congress had before it the question of declaring war against the German Empire, Mr. Lomasney counselled me not to vote for war, and when the Conscription Bill was under discussion he likewise advised that I vote against its passage. Every vote and effort of mine as a public servant has been for the best interests of my country and its people, a statement I cannot make about Mr. Lomasney."

The American Federation of Labor has sent word throughout the Tenth District urging its membership to vote for the return to the 67th Congress of Congressman Tague.

At noon tomorrow the Charlestown Congressman is to hold a rally at the Bertelsen & Peterson plant, East Boston. Tomorrow night he is going to hold rallies in East Boston, at Orient Heights, Chelsea and Marion streets, and at Moore and Saratoga streets.

WOUND SAVES LIFE OF WAR VETERAN

Cadiz, Ohio, Aug. 26.—To the fact that he received a wound in the recent World War a young miner in Duncanwood owes his life.

A wedding celebration was on recently in the mining town.

"Pickhandle" was flowing freely.

A fight started and the young miner was shot three times, each bullet striking the plate placed in his head in France by overseas army surgeons, glancing off the plate the bullets made relatively minor flesh wounds.

His assailant fled.

The Lord Mayor was too weak to see any other persons.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin cabled Lloyd George that MacSweeney's death would be an awful calamity in Ireland.

Claim MacSweeney Jailed on Unproven Charge

Dublin, Aug. 26.—In preparation for its defence in event of the death of Lord Mayor MacSweeney of Cork, in Brixton Prison, the administration at Dublin Castle issued a statement saying that the Mayor was not sentenced for merely presiding at a Sinn Fein arbitration court, but because he was one of the commandants of the Cork brigade and attended its meetings.

To this the Sinn Fein leaders reply that the specific charges of the court-martial were possession of a cipher code and three other trial counts, and that therefore the government has jailed him on a charge that was not proven.

London, Aug. 26.—Come and learn how to be a medium.

This is the invitation held out, if not in exact terms, in effect by kindly and earnest "believers" all over London. The machinery, however, has many points of similarity.

PAWN BROKER FIGHTS OFF 3 ARMED BANDITS

Dozens of shots were fired but no one was killed. The bandits fled through the streets carrying their smoking pistols. Two men were later arrested in connection with the case.

HARDING LAUDS PARTY ECONOMY

Contrasts Saving by Republican Congress With Democratic Unfulfilled Pledges

By Universal Service.

Marion, O., Aug. 25.—Fresh contrasting what he termed the fulfilled pledges of the democratic administration with the actual performances of the Republican Congress elected in 1918, Senator Warren G. Harding, in a speech at Waterloo, Ill., this afternoon, discussed at length the financial rehabilitation achieved by his party.

Reciting the fact that the Republican Congress had cut government expenditures two and one quarter billion dollars in the years of its existence, Senator Harding said that he wished to "proclaim the day when we may thank in millions once more."

"According to the statement of the Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, had it not been for these vast savings the government would be facing a deficit of over $1,400,000,000 instead of a surplus of $1,100,000,000 for the coming fiscal year," said Senator Harding.

The nominee pointed to the fallacy of the democratic contention that the League of Nations would prevent war when the administration's own estimates for army and navy expenditures had been $1,749,358,604.80. This total, Senator Harding said, had been cut in two by the Republican Congress.

Senator Harding assailed the "premeditated" neglect of the administration to prepare for our inevitable involvement in the world war.

New Metal Planes to Fight 4 Miles Up

By Universal Service.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Air battles [illegible] will be fought at 20,000 feet altitude with blunt nosed all metal armored planes, speeding at more than 200 miles an hour, according to information obtained at the War Department today.

They will carry at least one large caliber machine gun firing [illegible] armor-piercing explosive shells in addition to smaller guns. Such planes are forecast for the United States Service. They will climb 20,000 feet in ten minutes and stay there seven hours.

LARGE VELVET HATS REPLACE SMALL TURBANS

The vogue of the small turban which has been so beloved has been overshadowed by the large velvet hat trimmed in a simple fashion with narrow ribbon loops. These larger hats are of duvetyn and falls as well sometimes trimmed with feathers or with flowers of an unusual material such as kid for instance.

The embroidered hats which have been so popular are passing, but even the small hat is worn, the small feather toques will hold first place. The hat of medium size but with a somewhat higher crown and brim drooping slightly trimmed in a simple fashion and made of a fabric which harmonizes with the dress or suit will be a great favorite of the season.

The general tendency is somewhat duller shades for the hats, as a reaction against the bright-hued hats of the Summer.—September Good Housekeeping

Near-Panic as He Promises to Give Evidence of "Conspiracy" to Buy Presidency

By Universal Service.

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 26.—"Evidence that convicts every mother's son" among the Republican campaign leaders of "a deliberate plot" and "a conspiracy" to buy the presidency was promised by Governor James M. Cox, in a speech at Pittsburgh tonight. Supreme confidence in his manner and fight in his voice, the Democratic candidate shouted:

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treatment. There is also a La-may Talcum that prevents the souring of perspiration. It is now the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. Women who have used even the most expensive face powders say La-may stays on better than any other; they say they can not buy a better powder anywhere at any price. There is a thousand dollar guarantee of purity printed on the box, certifying it does not contain white lead, rice powder or any harmful substance. This guaranteed pure powder is called La-may (French, Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and harmless La-may is now used by over a million American women.

The Greatest Fighter.

"TAD," the famous cartoonist, has been conducting a symposium on "The Greatest Fighter I Ever Saw."

The greatest fighter anybody ever saw was John L. Sullivan Some of "Tad's" correspondents named the Boston Strong Boy, but they fail to mention the reason why Sullivan was the greatest fighter They speak only of his ring achievements.

Billy Papke once knocked out Stanley Ketchel and won the middleweight championship. Ketchel got another match in a short time and knocked out Papke.

It is seldom that a fighter is able to turn the tables on a man who has once defeated him decisively. Ring writers have for years been referring to Ketchel's come-back as an extraordinary feat.

John L. Sullivan was knocked out by Self Indulgence, a more formidable opponent than Papke, and perhaps the most formidable opponent that ever confronts a man.

Self Indulgence in Sullivan's case took the form of drink. He indulged himself for years. When he fell at New Orleans, nearly three decades back, James J. Corbett got credit for a victory, but thinking men knew that Self Indulgence beat the mighty Sullivan.

Many believed that Sullivan would go to his grave with that black mark of defeat against him. Some men are completely discouraged by one reverse.

But Sullivan shook himself together, went into mental training, rematched himself against his real conqueror, Self Indulgence, and this time won very handily.

He died sober and respected.

It was John L. Sullivan's supreme triumph

It takes a great fighter to beat Self Indulgence once it gets a good lead.

Old Self Indulgence is fast, and employs a variety of dangerous punches. It stopped Sullivan with drink, but it bowls over many a man with the Self Indulgence of Temperament, that shows him up to sulkiness when things are not breaking right

Then again Self Indulgence frequently employs the wallop of Extravagance to bring down its victims, this, indeed, being one of its most deadly blows.

Take heart from the life of John L. Sullivan, you who have been licked by Self Indulgence.

You can come back and reverse the decision.

TAD'S TIDBITS

HERE'S A BIG MATCH.

Our idea of a swell quarrel would be one between Jess Willard and Fred Fulton for fifteen rounds. There's a muss!

Willard, standing six feet seven inches and weighing maybe 250 pounds, against Fulton, six feet five inches and weighing maybe 230 pounds.

Fulton, 50 per cent. cleverer than the bulky Willard, would put up a great battle and would probably win if he forgot that dread of the K. O. punch.

Maybe if Tom O'Rourke threw a few home brews into the tall plasterer before he entered the arena he'd do better. It may be that Fred goes in too cold.

Both Willard and Fulton have been stopped by Dempsey, so another K. O. to either's record wouldn't harm much.

They say that Willard is anxious to return to the ring Who is there that will fight him? Fulton had an awful time finding an opponent. Here's a chance.

Joe Walcott in Australia.

"The steamship Chemnitz has just cleared, having been here for a fortnight," says the Eyres Peninsula Tribune, South Australia, of June 25. "She is a large vessel and carried passengers and cargo. Her crew consisted of about 120 men, who were very lively about the streets. Among the number was the one-time welterweight boxer, Joe Walcott. Joe has not been in the ring for some years. He looks young and active, but he is now fifty-three years of age. Quite a number of the local pugs and sports who knew his history were very interested in him, and he had the gloves on with the local champion, Archie Robinson, who has won several contests since his arrival at Wallaroo, but Joe outclassed him, proving too active and clever. In a conversation with Walcott, who, in his day, was known as the 'giant-killer,' he said he was very wealthy, and could claim a million dollars as his own. While at Wallaroo he had a good time, and a disturbance occurred in the Cornucopia Hotel. Joe dealt out stoush to some who annoyed him, and the hotel keeper called in Constable O'Connell, who removed Joe to a place of safety. He paid his fine and was quite optimistic over his experience in Australia."

Dempsey Busier Than a Bird Dog.

The Miske-Dempsey fight is billed for the afternoon of September 6, the big holiday next month falling on that date. As soon after that as September 18, there will be a heavyweight championship match in Boston, Manager Kearns says. Gunboat Smith will battle Dempsey, whom he has met before

From Boston the champion will head back to New York, where he finished a three weeks' training siege recently. Bill Brennan, Chicago boy, who recently was matched with Dempsey, will be his third opponent. Tex Rickard will stick on Jack and Bill in Madison Square Garden on the evening of October 12 or thereabouts.

Georges Carpentier will sail for America on September 6, the day that Dempsey meets Miske. He will get into New York around the 14th, prepared to sign up with and fight Dempsey. Tex Rickard, who controls the Madison Square Garden lease, has the inside track. Tex has secured an option on Carpentier's services that was held by George Cochrane, the London promoter, and already has talked business with Dempsey.

Kearns allows that the Frenchman will pass up Battling Levinsky, whom he agreed to fight, and oppose Dempsey, with Richard promoting the contest, in November or December.

With Dempsey all set to fight Miske, Gunboat Smith, Brennan and Carpentier in a hurry, and not much rest between bouts, one would imagine he would book a little vacation or a stake tour after the white hope with the Frenchman, win or lose. But not so.

Miske says Jack won't get by the first fight. Of course, Dempsey has to win as he goes along to carry out this schedule

Right whom Dempsey expects to fight after the Carpentier contest? No? Jess Willard. Kearns said so yesterday morning

Rickard is the only promoter Jess will box for, and they have been in correspondence for months. Willard has been waiting for Rickard to acquire the right spot in New York, and Tex is all set Dempsey is willing, so there is nothing to prevent a return collision with the giant he humbled at Toledo.

Jess will train for five or six months, he writes Rickard, and then expects to be fit to show the country that the Toledo result was wrong. Which may be so. There are many who saw him that day who believe that he can do much better.

MOVE TO OUST CARL MAYS

American League Players Will Soon Demand Removal of New York Pitcher

A movement has been started by players in the American League to force Carl Mays, the Yankee pitcher, out of the game. The athletes in general resent the attitude the former Red Sox star has taken since one of his fast balls caused the death of Ray Chapman of Cleveland.

Meetings have been held by the members of several of the clubs, and it can be stated that Mays has very few friends on teams other than his own The Browns, who are here playing Red Sox, discussed the matter at their daily meeting yesterday, and while nothing was announced, it is believed that the players are ready to line up with those of other clubs and refuse to face the Yankee pitcher.

Definite Action in Two Weeks

Correspondence has been exchanged between the players of various clubs and as far as we have been able to learn most of the teams in the league approve putting the matter so strongly up to the officials that some action will be forced. There is no idea of a baseball strike, or anything of the kind, but the athletes believe that if they are unanimous in demanding that Mays be ruled out, the league heads will be forced to accede.

The announcement from New York that Mays was suffering from a nervous breakdown as a result of the Chapman death followed a day later by his appearance in the box to shut out the Tigers, has aroused a storm of adverse comment.

Mays' Statement Has Not Helped Him

The statement that Mays has given out hasn't helped his popularity any, either. Many of the players resent his comparison of his record for hitting batters with those of Ehmke of Detroit and Joe Bush of Boston, both of whom have reputations for being anything but bean ball flingers.

No one team will start the drive against Mays by refusing to take the field against him, but the matter will be pushed through by the players in a body. It can be gathered from casual comment that the objectors to Mays pitching expect definite action within a fortnight. The New York club has announced its intention of using Mays in his regular turn. He was received enthusiastically at New York the other day, but his reception on the road is likely to be very stormy.

Carpentier in Near Street Mixup

Paris, Aug. 26—Georges Carpentier, the European champion, barely missed participation in a public rough and tumble fight at Deauville a few days ago, when challenged by a former aviator in the French army.

The pugilist, who has been spending some of his time at the resort since his return from the United States, accidentally elbowed the former aviator in a crowd around one of the gaming tables at the Casino.

The aviator became loudly resentful and gave Carpentier a vigorous denunciation. He charged the champion with spending all his time in Paris during the war and with never having been at the front

He wound up by challenging Carpentier to fight on the spot During the hubbub that followed Carpentier slipped away and disappeared.

BROWNS BATTLE TO HOLD FOURTH POSITION

SOX HOPE TO LAND PLACE

Two and One-Half Games Separate Locals from First Division

By NICK FLATLEY.

The hectic battle for fourth place in the American League has tightened up a bit more, and now the flying Red Sox are merely a matter of two and a half games away from the St. Louis Browns, who seemed to have the spot mortgaged a short time back. But the native athletes have staged a real drive—a burst of speed that would have meant something had it opened a bit sooner.

The Sox have won eight of seven games since returning to their native haunts, and at present writing look as good as any team in the well-known circuit. The pitchers are pitching, and the hitters are hitting, and everything and the Browns will have to find a little more power if they wish to stay in the elite quartet

Browns a Bad Second in Opening Game

[illegible] those youths were very much favored to win the same because of the impressive fashion in which they had raced through the opening number. The Browns just simply weren't anywhere while the Sox pounded Allan Sothoron all over the pasture.

For today's conflict, the pitching selections should be Hoyt for the natives and Shocker for the aliens. But those last minute switches that are so popular have a mean habit of hopping in and crossing up the dope. As a matter of fact both teams have two or three hurlers that are ready to step in and go to work

No Double-Headers to Worry Over

With no double headers in the offing Manager Burke and Barrow haven't anything particular to worry about in the pitching line. As things stand just now the Boston staff, with Bush, Jones, Pennock, Hoyt, Harper and Meyers all in good form, shapes up as powerfully as any flinging corps extant and the team's attack, with Hendryx back in batting way over .300 is nothing to sneeze at.

Manager Burke of the visitors who have tripped up several of the leaders at various times during the season is inclined to believe that the White Sox will batter their way through to another championship. He calls attention to the facts that the team has been going at a good steady clip all season long, has the experience to hold it up to the finish, and has four pitchers taking regular turn in the box.

White Sox Pitchers Going Distance

Being observant, as managers have to be, James remarks that the White Sox haven't been obliged to shift pitchers in a game for seven series, or seven weeks or something like that, and if that doesn't show hurling strength of championship calibre, what does? as you might ask. The Indians and Yanks have been subject to slumps and upsets; the Kidgielsons go along as smoothly as the traffic in that which was prohibited.

The initial clash twixt Browns and Sox eventuated with an 11 to 1 score, in favor of the Sox. Elmer Meyers, late of Cleveland, tossed another very good game, so good in fact that one wonders why Speaker ever let him loose. Meyers was hit safely but seven times and only once did he permit a blow when the same meant a run

BRAVES HOOK UP WITH BUCCOS

Tyler Came Back Strong in Last Tilt at Chicago and Beat Old Team, 4 to 0

Pittsburgh, Aug. 26.—Two more of the Braves' players have fallen victims to the jinx that has pursued the hired hands of George Washington Grant all season, Ehrs and O'Neil being the latest members to suffer hurts

In fielding practice at Chicago Ehrs got sail for a fly ball and, as he approached the terrace in front of left field fence, stubbed his toe. As a result his nose collided with an iron fence supporting the screen in front of the bleachers. He went down and out and was cuckoo for an hour

In the eighth inning Catcher O'Neil walked into a curve ball thrown by "Lefty" Tyler. The ball struck him behind the left ear and he fell to the ground. Players of both clubs congregated, and O'Neil revived and insisted on going to first base, but was persuaded to retire. Hank Gowdy finished the game behind the bat

O'Neil's injury is not serious according to Manager Stallings. Ehrs, however wears an exceedingly sore beezer. A on his forehead was cut, and a surgeon took four stitches to close the wound. Otherwise the Braves are going along as heretofore.

Dempsey Has Edge on Miske as Result of Strict Attention to Training

Benton Harbor, Mich., Aug. 26.—Jack Dempsey has the same training edge over Billy Miske that he had on Jess Willard at Toledo, according to fight fans who visited the camps where challenger and champion are training hard for the Labor Day battle.

Watching Dempsey and Big Bill Tate boxing in the ring in front of the grandstand reminded one sharply of their training days at Toledo. The only difference was that they boxed here in fur gym costume, whereas Dempsey, in his Marines Key enclosure performed always in fighting togs and allowed the sun to burn him until he was almost as dark as Tate.

Tate makes an ideal sparring partner. He is tremendous in size, can stand the gaff and boxes well. In addition Jack spars with Panama Joe Gans, the shifty, clever negro, who, though light, has a lot of skill and speed and compels Dempsey to step fast to get anywhere with him.

CHAPTER XXIII.—Continued

"THEY are not like humans; they resemble Fabre's insects —strange incomprehensible Martians, doing things not from intelligence, not from reason, impulse, desire, but merely from an inherited instinct that apes intelligence, that parodies passion."

"What have they done to you, Harry?"

"Nothing, in years. Because I won't let 'em. But the spectacle of the world suddenly crawling with women, all swarming restlessly over the face of the globe, not knowing why or whither —it appalls me, Jim.

"And we men continue flinging at them everything we can think of to stop 'they, quiet them and keep them still—personal liberty, franchise, political opportunity, professional and industrial chance—and still they twist and wriggle and squirm and swarm over everything restlessly, slowly becoming denatured, unsexed, more sterile, more selfish, insolent, intolerable every day. They are the universal nuisance of the age; they are slowly smothering us as shifting dunes threaten the fertile plain"——

"For heaven's sake"——

A Dreary Outlook

"There's the unvarnished truth about woman," insisted Belter. "She's got the provocative caliber of a cat; the casual insouciance of a sparrow; the nestling and hatching instinct of the hen; the mindless jealousy of a Pekingese.

"The creative mind that marries one of 'em is doomed either to sterility or to anguish. Their jealousy and malice stultify and slay the male brain; there is no arguing with them because they have no real mind to appeal to, no logic, no reason. Like the horrible praying Mantis, they suffer the embrace of the male and immediately begin to eat him, commencing with the head——"

Cleland began to laugh. His mirth, unrestrained, did not disturb Belter, who continued to eat his club sandwich and wash it down with huge draughts of Pilsner.

"Do you think I'd marry one of 'em?" he demanded scornfully. "Do you know what really happened to Clarence Verne?"

"No."

"Well, he married a dainty little thing reported to confess earning two thousand dollars for every magazine cover he designed. And do you know what happened?"

"No, I don't."

"I'll tell you. The dainty little thing turned jealous, hired a shyster who hired detectives to follow Verne about and report to her what he did inside and outside his studio. She doped his food when she thought he had a rendezvous; she had his letters stolen.

"In his own world any woman he found agreeable was cut out by his wife, if, in the jolly and unconventional fellowship of Bohemia, he ever stopped on the street to chat with a pretty girl or took one, harmlessly, to lunch or supper, or offered any of 'em tea in his studio, her detectives reported it to her, and she raised hell.

"It killed spontaneity, any gayety of heart, any incentive in Verne. It embittered him. Look at his work today. Nothing comes to it except the mechanical technique. Look at the man. Dead in his bathroom. Don't talk to me about women."

"Why didn't he divorce her if he knew of all this and was driven"——

"He had a little girl to think of. After all, Verne had lived his life. Better snuff it out that way and leave the child in decent ignorance of family dissension, . . . And that was the matter with Clarence Verne, Cleland. And I . . . I say that into the heart of every man who has been fool enough to marry some canker is eating its way. There is not one woman in a million with mind enough and humanity enough to keep her husband's love—not one who knows enough to

'Let him alone
And he'll come home'—

Not one with the brains, mental resources, wisdom, to mate without becoming a parasite. And still, all over the world the sexes are solemnly asking each other, 'Is marriage a failure?' Bah! The world makes me very sick."

Went to Funeral

They went to Verne's funeral a few days later. The widow was pretty in her deep mourning. Her little girl was with her.

But the affair was not even a nine-days' gossip in the artists' world. Verne had stalked wistfully among them for a few years, but had never been of them since his marriage; he had lived at home in one of the fashionable quarters, although his studio and his heart were in Chelsea.

CHAPTER LI.

LIKE Barbara, John Brandon thought hard until long past midnight. But he did his thinking before he went to bed. Sitting in his lonely drawing room, he reached a decision. He must try to change his views to suit Barbara's.

He admitted that he had already striven to do this; but when he had believed he had succeeded, her words this evening proved that he had not. He was at fault somewhere. He must make another effort.

If he could not blind her to the fact that he did not enjoy the social function that she liked he could at least conform to her views about other things. With a sudden inspiration he remembered that, since she was to be the mistress of his house, there might be some changes he could make in its appointments. He would ask her to suggest these. Anxiously he looked about him.

On the floor was the same mosaic carpet that his mother had had laid there twenty-five years ago. It was a light ground with huge red roses on it. Above the windows hung the red satin lambrequins his mother had chosen.

Taking Stock

Someone had told him that all these furnishings were mid-Victorian. But he had considered them correct enough for an old bachelor. He wondered now if they would be correct enough for a young and pleasure loving girl.

Yet, if these things had suited his mother, why not Barbara?

Barbara belonged to another generation.

Well, he would wait until morning and consult his housekeeper about the possible changes that must be made. Strange that he had not thought of this before!

He had intended to retain Mrs. Markoe as housekeeper after his marriage. She had lived her in that capacity for ten years—ever since his mother's death. He had spoken to Barbara of this, and she had said indifferently that the arrangement would suit her.

"I know so little of how you want things done," she had remarked, "that it might be easier if Mrs. Markoe stayed on for a while, at any rate."

To Mrs. Markoe he had simply said that he was engaged to be married. She had congratulated him and had asked him if he were to be married soon. That would be settled later, he had replied.

Since then no further reference had been made to the future. His housekeeper was not a person to talk overmuch. She was a retired New Englander—a most satisfactory person, he reflected now. Yes, he would have a talk with her tomorrow.

Coming to the Point

It was after breakfast the following morning, that he carried out his intention. Mrs. Markoe had handed him his cup of coffee when he spoke.

"There is a little matter that I would like to consult you about," he said. "I suppose that perhaps I ought to make some alterations in the furnishings of the house before I—well, before my marriage."

"Furnishings?" the woman asked in surprise. "Surely the house is all in good order. I have been most careful of it."

"Indeed you have," he agreed. "I appreciate that fact. But, as you know, young people like modern things and I was wondering if Miss Paige"——

Mrs. Markoe sniffed significantly. "Excuse me, Mr. Brandon. But I have always called her by her first name, seeing I have known her ever since she was a child."

Mrs. Solomon Says—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

MY Daughter, who is so trying to the spirit, and so galling to the flesh, as a FUNNY MAN in the water?

For, lo, there be these three: the water-witch, the water-wing, and the water-wave.

But the water-WIT outclasseth them all!

Pebbles in the shoe are painful, and seaweed in the hair is not to be endured; but an oyster-shell to the bare feet is merciful and tender beside one of these.

Yea, of all the terrors of the sea and the pests of the shore, he is the most to be dreaded.

He lureth the timid damsel into the water and offereth to teach her to swim; he droppeth her beneath the waves, and is filled with glee at her struggles.

And great are his ha-has when she swalloweth half the ocean!

He "spatteth" water into the eyes of the unwary infant, and joyfully douseth the maiden whose complexion "cometh off," and whose marcel wave is NOT permanent.

He playeth "crab" beneath the water, and grabbeth the toes of the unsuspecting, causing them to shriek for his delight.

He findeth dismal lobsters and surreptitiously placeth them upon the ankles of the timorous.

He is SO coquettish!

He rocketh the rowboat until the damsels cry out in terror, and amuseth the multitude by tipping the canoe for diversion.

Behold, could anything be "funnier!"

Verily, verily, he is the Peter Pan of the Seaside, the eternal "small boy," who hath never grown up, nor lost his joy in the Practical Joke!

Lo, his "wit" is heavier than hotel pastry, and harder to swallow than an actress' press notices. Yet, when the persecuted victim cryeth out in protest, he mocketh him with cheerful ha has, saying:

"Oh, be a sport—be not a joy-killer!"

Alas, many sorrows have we with us at the Summer resort; but the WATER-WIT o'ershadoweth them all.

For a little sense of humor, in the WRONG place, is a terrible thing! Selah.

Household Suggestions

When arranging flowers do not mix colors too much if you want to get a good effect. You will find that roses, violets and other short stemmed flowers look best in low vases or bowls. Daffodils, carnations and chrysanthemums should be placed in tall vases. If flowers have come by post they will freshen up wonderfully if their stems are placed in hot water for a little while before arranging them in vases. Most cut flowers will last a week if a little salt is put into the water. The stems of the flowers should be cut just a little, and the water changed daily if they are to look their best. A pretty table decoration can be arranged with little ribbon ferns such as can be bought for about five cents each. Wash away the earth from the roots of four ferns and place each fern in a little glass bowl of water these can be bought for a few cents. The effect of the roots seen through the glass is charming. The ferns never become pot-bound, and if the water is changed once or twice a week they will last for months.

White or light gloves may be worn many times without regular cleaning if, before taking off, any slightly soiled parts are rubbed over with a dampened flannel just rubbed over the cake of soap. Sometimes the lather has a kind of jelly on the under side, and this answers admirably. Avoid making the gloves really wet.

Famous Actress Tells How She Uses Derwillo to Beautify Her Complexion

MISS LOUISE HUFF

New York—Miss Louise Huff, the clever young actress, is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said: "It's all due to a toilet preparation I've used for years, which I've found to be perfectly harmless. I have had it explained to me that my perfect pink and white beautiful skin is due entirely to the fact that I have used Derwillo regularly. Derwillo is absolutely harmless and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. It is powerful to fade powder, as perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on much better. Hundreds of those users who are using it have had the same results as Miss Huff, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as she is and always use it in preference to any other powder or beautifier."

NOTE: When asked about Derwillo one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful beautifier and I would advise anyone who has the slightest trouble in the complexion line to use it. It's guaranteed to be harmless (even if used in excess) and we would not be willing to sell it if we did not believe it would do as stated. It's guaranteed would not be possible unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold in Boston and entirely under its own name by druggists generally in all department stores and up-to-date druggists.

To "Youth-ify" Gray, Streaked Hair

Ask anybody to guess how old you are, and notice how their first appraising glance is directed at your hair.

To be answered "You can't be more than thirty; I can tell by your hair," must give to any woman who is really forty or more a sense of pride and satisfaction.

But to become permanently gray at 35 or 40 or to look ten years older than you naturally are—that is indeed a bitter experience. However, any woman can, with a bottle of Brownatone, restore to gray, faded and streaked hair all its original beauty and the identical color it had in girlhood, whether light, medium, dark brown or black. Brownatone is instant in results and absolutely harmless.

Two sizes: 50c and $1.50; two colors: "Light to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black."

Special Free Trial Offer

For a free trial package of Brownatone, send to the Kenton Pharmacal Co., 520 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky., enclosing 11 cents to pay postage, packing and war tax. Tear this out.—Advertisement.

The Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER IX.

AFTER the wonderful dinner in Harwood's apartment, he took Ann and his mysterious friend home in his big, silent limousine. Ann had never ridden in anything like it before, and she could not help expressing her appreciation and wonderment as they glided along as noiselessly as if they were on wings.

Ann's joy and surprise at it all amused Harwood, while the mysterious woman companion of Ann was strangely quiet as she looked out the window, her chin resting on her hand and a troubled look lying in her eyes.

Harwood glanced at her often, and seemed to say, "Just let me see you NOT go through with it—if you dare."

Harwood told Ann that he wanted to meet her father and mother and arrange with them about Ann's taking singing lessons from the great Savoni. When Ann asked him, "But won't Savoni charge a terrible lot to be bothered teaching me to sing?" Harwood answered her, "Why, of course, he will, little girl, but what of it? Money means nothing to me. If I want a thing done, I never rest until it IS done."

As he said this last, he looked intently at the woman sitting beside Ann. But she pretended not to notice the remark, and was looking far, far away—probably to the days when Harwood had painted pictures to her of the rosy times ahead if she would only accompany him in his travels about the world—the days that had been so wonderful and sunny before he had tired of her, and that had been so dark and dismal ever since.

No wonder a little troubled sigh escaped her as they drew up in front of the apartment house where she and Ann lived. She said to Harwood that she thought she would go on up to her own apartment, instead of stopping in at Ann's with them, as she was tired and her head ached.

"You will not," he hissed in a whisper, "you will go through with this, or take the consequences."

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Ross

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

ROSS

VARIATIONS — Rosser, Rossman, Prosser.

RACIAL ORIGIN—Norman-French, Anglo-Saxon, German and Welsh.

SOURCE—Geographical; also descriptive; also a given name.

THIS group of family names is unusual in that it presents no less than five possible sources from which all except one of the foregoing forms may have developed, and undoubtedly did develop.

The exceptional case is Prosser. This name is fixed definitely as a contraction of "Ap Rosser," the "ap" being the regular Welsh method of denoting "son of." "Rosser" was a given name among the Normans, a quite usual one in the middle ages, but belonging to that class of given names like "Ithel," "Hamo," "Iver" (the feminine form of which, "Ivette" being still found in France) and many others which have come down to us in the form of family names, though as given names they have passed out of use.

"Rosser," at first lengthened into "Fitz-Rosser" or "Rosser's-son," with subsequent shortening, would give the names Ross and Rosser.

In many cases, however, such names as Ross, Rosser and Rossman have developed from an old word "ross," which meant in one part of England a heath or moorsa and in another a promontory. A "rosser" would be one who dwelt in such a place. In other cases it is but a variation of the old word for "red," from which our modern word "russet" has come, and from which modern French has "rouge" (red). Still another source is the old Teutonic word for "horse," which in Anglo-Saxon and ancient German was "hros." In the evolution of modern English the "o" and the "r" were switched around. In German the "h" was dropped, giving the now almost obsolete "ross," which, however, was common enough in Germany at the period of family name formation. (The English "palfrey," which is related to the modern German "pferde," is becoming obsolete with us.) From this source the names Rosser or Rossman would mean "horseman" or "rider" (like the name Ritter). There is also a town named Ros in Caen, Normandy, from which, in some cases, Ross and Rosser have been derived.

"The Ross clan of Scotland is a very ancient one," one history of the Ross family begins. What is true of Scotland is also true of the Ross name, but belonging to that class of given names like "Ithel," "Hamo," "Iver" (the feminine form of which, "Ivette" being still found in France) and many others which have come down to us in the form of family names, though as given names they have passed out of use.

"The Ross clan of Scotland is a very ancient one," one history of the Ross family begins. What is true of Scotland is also true of the Ross name, but belonging to those wherever they live, since they all hark back to Scotland.

The first Ross in America was one Thomas Ross, one of the earliest settlers on the James River, Virginia. After the massacres which the Indians perpetrated in Virginia in 1622, this Thomas was reported dead, leaving a wife and two children. Another Ross, prominent among the early members of that family in America, was Isaac Ross, born of Scotch parents in Ireland, who came here in the earlier 1700s, because it was not very comfortable for Scotch Presbyterians in the section of the country where first he saw the light. Descendants of these early Rosses settled in Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Virginia.

Care and Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared: could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And you! Mothers, mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself.

ALIEN INFLUX ALARMS LABOR

Federation Officials Will Ask Congress to Make Drastic Restrictions

Washington, Aug. 26.—Labor is thoroughly alarmed at the ever-growing foreign immigration, and Federation officials stated here that Congress will be asked to place drastic restrictions upon it.

It was announced by the Bureau of Immigration today that 56,195 immigrants entered the United States in July. Scarcity of transportation alone, it was stated, prevented arrival of twice that number. If this rate of immigration continues, for the balance of the year, nearly 700,000 Europeans will have landed.

"Even with the strictest regulations," said a labor official, "we are in danger of being swamped with poverty stricken Europeans before Congress can be assembled and pass restrictive legislation. In addition we have the ever-growing Japanese menace in California. For the present, this latter is California's problem. But if we do not meet it, it will become a menace of national proportions."

Restrictions to be asked will, it is understood, include higher educational and property qualifications, a declaration that the immigrant intends to become an American citizen, and the establishment of training centres where the new arrivals can be given an intensive course in Americanization.

1,547 PERSONS QUIT U. S. FOR CANADA IN JULY

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 26—Fifteen hundred and forty-seven persons left the United States during July to live in Canada, according to records made public here. Of the total 1,268 were native Americans.

ONE LITTLE PIMPLE SPOILS A BEAUTIFUL FACE

No matter how perfect the features, how radiant the complexion, just one little pimple will spoil it all.

Not always can these little facial blemishes be prevented for they may be caused by the too frequent use of irritating soaps, powders, rouge or possibly impure blood.

Every care should be taken to preserve the skin, especially the face, hands, arms and neck. Only the purest and best sterilized toilet soap should be used to cleanse the skin, and when a face powder must be employed, one of the highest quality should be selected.

When a pimple pops out on your face, you don't have to remain indoors or try to hide it. Simply touch the little spot with BLACK and WHITE Ointment and it will vanish almost like magic. This little aid to beauty should be kept on every woman's dressing table, because it is a necessary toilet requisite for removing other disfigurements such as rough, blotchy, sallow skin. The way it clears the complexion is surprising.

BLACK and WHITE Soap should always be used with the Ointment. Both are sold and guaranteed by all good drug stores at 25c each a package, or the manufacturers will send postpaid on receipt of 50c.

A sample of BLACK and WHITE Ointment, literature and BLACK and WHITE Birthday and Dream Book, sent free if you will clip out and mail this advertisement to BLACK and WHITE, Box 913, Memphis, Tenn.

Rails Show the Most Early Strength, With Steels, Oils and Equipments Receding

Stocks were weak in New ork at noon, when prices were near the lowest level touched during the morning. Rails displayed the most strength, while steels, oils and equipments were leaders in the recessional. The market was not so active today, first hour transactions approximating about 120,000 shares. As usual, call loans opened at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were steady. Demand sterling opened at $3.57¼.

Among those to show the largest losses were Mexican Petroleum, Maxwell, Studebaker, Pierce Arrow, Pan-American, Stromberg, Car and Foundry, Chandler, Cuba, Cane, Replogle, U. S. Rubber and Vanadium. They were down from one to two points. As a class motors ruled the weakest.

PRICES KEPT ON SAGGING.

While there seemed to be a better undertone at the start than the market had at the close today, the initial list was irregular at the best and a downward trend was the first development. Prices kept on sagging until the list was positively weak. By the end of an hour very few issues were up. Rails held up the strongest class, but were affected by the general tendency. Sugars were weakest at the outset, but later oils made a worse showing. Bethlehem Motors sold at a new low for the year on the first sale as a reflection of its receivership status. But losses did not run large. Early in the morning they varied from fractions to a couple of points. Consolidated Cigars was notably advancing, showing more than six points. Among others to show gains were American Beech Machine and Sumatra. Early trading was not as active as on Wednesday.

CREDIT EXPANSION CHECKED.

As to the money situation, Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board stated to day that expansion of bank credits has been definitely checked. In a statement given out at Washington to reviews the credit situation and what the government did to restrict credit to the most essential needs. He attributes the recent improvement and more hopeful financial outlook to this Federal Reserve policy, but states that it is largely caused with a "Maximum consideration for the maintenance of productive activity in all parts of the country.

"In the adjustment of trade and industry to the new basis of essential production, suspension of speculation and some hardship from unemployment may result," Gov. Harding said. "But in view of the serious shortage of goods in all lines and the pressing demands of consumers over the entire world, a readjustment should be effected without undue delay, and with a minimum of friction and suffering."

Governor Harding says the "Federal Reserve Board will not dictate to banks by specific reference to what are, and what are not essential credits.

Aren't You Glad That America Is Out of This Horrid Mess?

The League of Nations, which solicits America's company, was formed last year.

Every European nation which was invited to join did so.

The Senate very sensibly kept America out of the scheme, thus giving us time to see how it would work.

And what we have seen ought to satisfy any man with an ounce of common sense that the Senate did the wise thing.

Rumania, Greece, Serbia and Czecho-Slovakia are league members. Look at them. All armed to the teeth and all engaged, more or less, in hostilities with one another.

France is a league member. Look at France. Her military establishment is far larger than was Germany's in 1914, and she has armies at work conquering territory in the Near East, is spending millions to keep war going in the Crimea and in Poland, and constantly threatening Germany with invasion.

Poland is a member of the league. Look at Poland. She has attacked and invaded Russia and has precipitated a war which will be disastrous to both sides and result in the destruction of much wealth and the loss of many men.

Japan is a member of the league. Look at Japan. She is seizing Eastern Siberia, intriguing in and invading China, and cruelly abusing and massacring the civilian populations of Korea and the Trans-Baikal region.

England is a member of the league. Look at England. She is seizing Persian territory, shooting down Egyptians, making underhand war on Russia and riding rough-shod over Irish Republicans.

And now mark. Not one of these intriguing, quarrelling, warring, thieving members of the league has paid the least attention to the covenants of the league, has asked the league's permission to go to war, has submitted its claim to the league's arbitration or recognized in any way either the authority of the league or the pledges made to the league.

And yet, we have candidates for office travelling over the country assuring American voters that the only way to bring peace to the world is for America to become an associate of these quarrelsome, faithless, cheating, lying, murderous governments that already belong to the glorious League of Nations.

We wonder what kind of fools these politicians think their fellow-Americans are.

PONZISM Worthy of Remembrance

There are two ways to make money. One is to produce something of value. The other is to juggle what others have produced.

The history of high finance is full of instances where fortunes of all sizes, from $2 to $2,000,000,000, have been made by sleight-of-hand of one sort or another. Sometimes it is a railroad, sometimes oil, sometimes stocks and bonds, sometimes wheat or beef or sugar.

In Ponzi's case it appeared for a time to be exchange rates, but the later view is that Ponzi simply paid dividends to first patrons out of the money given to him by later ones.

The healthy mind, the balanced judgment, reduces all such transactions to their lowest terms, which are:

1. That there is but one honest way to make money, and that is to produce something of value.

2. That all money dishonestly made is not only against public welfare, but nine times out of ten proves a cross to the maker.

3. That making money by chance or legerdemain, whether by the rise or fall of stocks, or by the fall of dice, or by any other favor of the great god Luck, is a business that people who seek contentment and self-respect steer clear of.

And the smaller the amount of money you have to invest and the more you actually need the profits, the more dangerous it is to put your little all on the roulette wheel and to expect to make by guessing what you haven't sense enough to make by judgment.

If you have idle money or spare money there is one thing you can buy with absolute security—a Liberty bond or Victory bond of the U. S. A. For this will yield you a decent percentage; it is as safe as anything human, and it makes you a partner in the soundest and most prosperous business concern in the world—the United States Government.

Ponzism, high or low, camouflaged as an imposing investment company or naked as a game of craps, is plain rotten. Let it alone.

Work. Save your surplus. Be satisfied with a reasonable rate of interest. So shall you sleep o' nights and glance at the looking-glass without shame.

Here's Something for You Rich Men to Think About

There is only one cure for Europe's sickness.

That cure is work—growing more food crops and making more things to trade for food and necessaries.

But how can people make things without raw materials?

What is the use of telling people to work who have nothing to work with?

The politicians have made a wretched mess of their efforts to restore Europe to normal conditions.

Suppose our American business men take over the job.

They can do it—and they ought to do it, for their own good.

Here's a suggestion, just as a beginning:

There is a lot of cotton in this country. We don't need it. It is for sale. Central Europe does need it. But Central Europe has no money to buy with.

American financiers could ship this cotton to Central Europe, have it manufactured there into cotton fabrics which all the world needs, and take the pay for the raw cotton in manufactured goods.

This would be profitable business for our financiers and it would start the cotton factories of Central Europe to working.

One thing is sure:

Either the people of Central Europe, including Germany and Austria, must be enabled to go to work and earn livings, or else the Bolsheviki will sweep over Europe from one end to the other.

And if that happens there will be plenty of trouble in our own country.

A few hundred million dollars' worth of food and raw materials sent to Central Europe on credit now may well save the loss of billions later. And the beauty of it is that this sale of goods and food on credit would be a profitable investment.

But if these things are to be done at all, they must be done quickly.

Hunger and revolution are not patient waiters upon anybody's convenience.

Women Promptly Discover Work for the Scrubbing Brush

The women of Maryland clearly have a case against the motto on their State's coat of arms: "Deeds are masculine, words feminine."

From drinking and smoking to fighting in "battalions of death," modern woman has let no man get ahead of her. While as for words, did you ever overhear a he gossip match on the fringes of a church conference, college reunion or political convention?

Seriously, woman has always worked as hard and talked as little as man.

Even back in the pioneer days of the Calverts, when that man-made motto was adopted, was man a bit braver than woman in facing the perils of the forest, withstanding Indian attacks or meeting the countless daily hardships and privations? Not so far as history notices.

"Man has always liked to boast of his prowess as a doer and to jibe at woman because of the activity of her tongue. But put a man to woman's tasks and in less than a day either he would be suffocated in the sulphuric fumes of his own profanity or his tongue would be paralyzed along with his muscles in sheer exhaustion.

It is part of the duty of our new voters to take political soap, water and scrubbing brush and clean off the marks of man's defilement upon the decks, flagstaff and prow of the ship of state. Men expect that and will really be glad when it is done.

That medieval-minded Maryland motto should be among the first to go.

Stars and Stripes

America's 300,000 commercial travelers want a wholesale passenger rate, with extra baggage privileges. Expect an issue, for they're men who usually make their wants known.

Some forty armies, more or less.
Are adding to men's tribulations;
Wars rage with unchecked bitterness—
Who said "God bless the League of Nations?"

It is alleged that the war made 23,000 American millionaires. None of them, so far as we have been able to follow the returns, appears to have been in the war.

It may be inconvenient for England again to fight the Reds, but Lloyd George reserves the right to make faces in public.

More Truth Than Poetry

A Vacation That Failed

By S. E. KISER

He needed rest, therefore his wife
Made plans for his and her vacation;
A long way from the madding strife
She took him, seeking recreation.
The place she picked was on a hill,
And towering pine trees grew around it;
The days were cool, the nights were still,
And both were glad that she had found it.

For three delightful days it seemed
As if the place possessed perfection;
They sat upon the porch and dreamed,
Where screens afforded sweet protection.
Then came a widow, young and fair,
To seek relief from sad distraction—
Wherever widows are, prepare
To witness Fate get into action.

The man who needed rest was not
Inclined to wander from discretion;
In fact, he never had a thought
Of any villainous digression.
But now and then, to be polite,
He tried to cheer the one who fretted,
And, as a lovely widow might,
She found it pleasing to be petted.

Before his rest was half complete
His wife cut short his glad vacation,
And left the widow far from sweet,
But with an added tribulation.
She had deep scratches in her cheeks,
Her crop of hair was much diminished—
An outing planned to last three weeks
In five eventful days was finished.

Latest Modern Enoch Arden

How would you feel if, on returning home from the wars, you were to find your wife, believing you dead, married to an ancient rival? The situation is not unusual. The latest of many modern "Enoch Ardens" is Henry Curtis, who served with the Canadian armies abroad and was reported gassed and dead.

His wife married a sweetheart of her childhood days—but when her first husband returned she at once procured a divorce and was married again to Curtis. And so everything ended happily—except for the second husband. Read the story of this unusual divorce case in the Magazine Section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

All America and most of Europe has been much interested in the marital troubles of Charles Chaplin, clown de luxe of the film firmament. The average motion picture enthusiast has found it hard to believe that the irrepressible Charles could really have been as cruel and hard-hearted as the allegations of his wife would seem to prove.

On Sunday the Boston Sunday Advertiser prints the personal story of Mildred Harris Chaplin. The little actress-wife tells her story frankly and fully. Read it in Sunday's Magazine Section.

Most people know the tragic story of La Tosca. Not everyone knows that during the war there was an incident which seemed to have been taken direct from the opera. Mata Hari, beautiful spy, met her death before the rifles of a French firing squad. Now the story comes out that up to the moment when the bullets took her life she had believed that the cartridges were blank, and that her life was to be spared in some mysterious manner. Read the story and see the photographs in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.—Yours is the true human touch. Wherefore, it occurs to me to ask what would you do if left $50,000,000? Do let us know, please. They ask, "What's in a name?" A great deal often, so I'll sign only my initials. R. L.

MY DEAR R. L.
LIKE ANY one else.
IF SO it was.
THE FIFTY million.
CAME TO him.
OR CAME to her.
I'D SURELY do.
THE SELFISH thing.
IN OTHER words.
I'D DO those things.
THAT BROUGHT to me.
THE GREATEST joy.
AND BEING poor.
AS MONEY goes.
IT SEEMS to me.
THAT I might find.
THE GREATEST joy.
IN BRINGING joy.
TO OTHER poor.
OF HUMAN folk.
OR CAT or dog.
OR FAITHFUL horse.
OR WHAT they be.
BUT AS I'm poor.
I CANNOT tell.
WHAT I might do.
IF I were rich.

FOR NO one knows.
WHAT HE might do.
IN OTHER'S shoes.
I MIGHT grow cold.
TO OTHER'S wants.
AND PILE my gold.
SO VERY high.
I COULD not see.
BEYOND THE gold.
AND I might feel.
THAT THOSE who came.
AND WOULD be friends.
CAME FOR my gold.
AND HUMAN like.
I'D HOLD it tight.
NO, I can't tell.
WHAT I would do.
IF FIFTY million.
CAME TO me.
BUT I'D be glad.
IF I could know.
THAT IT would come.
PURGED FREE of greed.
AND AVARICE.
AND LEAVE me free.
TO STILL be poor.
I THANK you.

LIFE'S MOST PERFECT GIFT IS LOVE

By Beatrice Fairfax

"FRIEND, of my infinite dreams
Little enough endures;
Little how'er it seems,
It is yours, all yours.

"Faith hath a fleeting breath,
Hopes may be frail but fond,
But Love shall be Love till death,
And perhaps beyond."

THOSE lines make a poem called "The Gift." It was written by a man named Arthur Benson. It expresses marvelously well the exquisite quality of love as known by an idealist. Love would give everything, and yet of its gifts, what endures?

The rich man presents his beloved with jewels, a town house and a country house, a rope of pearls, gold enough to buy whatever she desires—whatever, even, she fancies. The poor man looks on and aches with longing to give as much to the woman he loves.

Giving More

Perhaps he is giving more, though he does not know it. But perhaps while he is giving more—and here is the possibility for tragedy—the woman who is dowered with gifts finer than pearls and gold does not know it and longs in bitterness for the things which seem so glorious to her.

We all long for love, for understanding, for companionship—and when they are offered to us, are we brave enough to take them? Are poverty and struggle too much for us—or will we embrace them gladly for love's sake?

The other day I heard a fine man speaking of his little cottage.

"It's just a house," he said, shamefacedly, showing the picture of the little place to a woman who "has everything."

And with a note of ache, of longing that was actually terrible in her smooth, cultivated, well-bred voice, she cried:

A Home

"But it isn't just a house. It's a home!"

She knew that in the cottage of this poor man there are three splendid children, wide-eyed, happy and rosy. She knew that in the little piece of ground outside there are flowers in a lovely garden tangle. She knew that the wife is a placid, happy woman who is never denied whatever the man has it in his power to give.

Love makes up for everything else. Big, honest, far-seeing, noble love is worth anything it costs, any pain it must endure, any disappointment it must share. But love—to make up for so much—must hold almost everything in itself. Not just desire, or affection—but the great, deep understanding and oneness must be Love's own if it is to be the perfect gift.

NEW THEORY WHY FLY ELUDES HAND

By Garrett P. Serviss

SOME weeks ago I wrote about the escape of flies from between the hands of their would-be human executioners, the object of the writing being to show how, by a simple experiment which anybody can try, it is possible to test for one's self the question whether beings as low in the ranks of life as flies have any power of voluntary action.

A reader in Mayfield, Ky., an artist and photographer, writes me that I failed to take into account "the main reason for the fly's escape from between the palms of the hands when suddenly brought together, and that is the air currents." Then he goes on: "If the hands are close enough to the table and a bit of down is substituted for the fly, the down will escape from between the hands the same as the fly, if the hands are brought together with enough force, especially if the down be placed a bit above the surface of the table, the distance the fly would probably leap on approach of danger."

Instructive

Now the facts, as shown by my experiments, are these: If you carefully place your hands on each side of the floating down, in the same relative situation, and at the same average distance apart as if the down were a fly on a table, you will slap it between your palms every time. But, if you place your hands too wide apart, and are not careful to move them in the same plane, and if, owing to the sinking, or other movements of the down in the air, you make the stroke when the down is not properly in line between the hands, or if the hands meet one another awry, then the down will escape, and the more excited you become in chase of it the more erratic will be its movements.

A Dead Fly

I have spoken of the floating down because the experiment is instructive in itself. But, in reality, it does not truly illustrate the case of the fly, because the fly is not floating. It rests motionless upon the table, with adherent feet. Try gently to blow away a fly standing on a smooth table or a window pane. It cowers and holds its place. Then, with the same force, at the same distance, blow a dead fly, and note the result.

Now what happens when you use a flat piece of board of the size of a fly swatter. A dead fly that the slightest puff of breath will blow away is not blown away by a shingle slapped straight down upon it. But, if the shingle is lifted with equal speed after the swat, then the body of the fly will be blown off to one side by the inward air currents induced underneath the rising shingle. Great is natural philosophy when cultivated on the Baconian plan, which means getting the facts ahead of the theories.

Letters to the Editor

Custom House Workers

Editor Boston American:

"I always read and admire your editorials. In a recent paper you write of "The Poorest Paid Public Workers." The pay of laborers of the Custom House is $60 a month, with a bonus of $20, or limiting their pay to $720 a year. If all of the papers would take this up, I feel that Congress would wake up and pay a man enough to live without doing some other work, as they have to now after hours.

Housing Problem

Editor Boston American:

Why should the city of Boston embark upon a socialistic scheme of house planning and house building, when tax exemptions on new work constructing for a period of fifteen or twenty years will not only operate to produce the houses required, but will save the city and tax-payers of Boston many millions of dollars which they would be compelled to pay if the scheme is accomplished?

If the city and the people of Boston desire to make sure and certain that tax exemptions will operate to produce the new construction required, the city may further exempt from taxation, for a long period of years, all mortgage money that may be, and would be, invested in new house construction, and the city, in making these exemptions will not only save the millions of dollars that would be expended in city construction, but would be the net gainer of all new construction, without expense to the city, which would not have been built except for these tax exemptions.
